

Ginkgo biloba 'Lemonlime Spire'

DWARF MAIDENHAIR TREE

This is a smaller fastigiate form of Ginkgo with lime-green summer foliage that is creased in appearance. In autumn, it presents with clear, yellow foliage. As a male clone of the species, its fruit does not carry an unpleasant scent. Only growing to 5 tall, this tree is both narrow and compact in form.

This is a great colour choice for tight spaces and containers, and in formal gardens and landscapes for vertical accent. It can also work as a deciduous hedge when planted closely. Is a popular choice for bonsai.

Prefers a temperate climate with cool to cold winters in full sun or part shade. Otherwise best to plant in a sheltered position, in aspects away from exposure to hot and dry northerly winds. Fertilise in late winter and mid-summer for optimum results.
