Hakea salicifolia 'ST1'

Foliage	Evergreen
Form	Round
Mature Size	4 x 3m
Family	Proteaceae

WILLOW-LEAFED HAKEA

This variety of Hakea is developed by and exclusive to Speciality Trees. A beautiful small tree or bushy shrub that can be used as a stand-alone tree, mixed with other natives or hedged to great effect due to its fine narrow leaf and bushy habit. While we have classified it as having a standard tree shape, we grow it bushy and full to the ground. Flowers are white and occur in the leaf axils. They are generally seen in late winter to spring. These are followed by woody seed pods.

We have identified this variety as an improved version of Hakea salisifolia. A great variety for native landscapes, hedges and screens. It has lovely coloured foliage which makes a great choice for native gardens.

Hakea salicifolia is a very hardy plant in most soils preferring full sun and/or part shade. It's native to NSW and Queensland but is easily grown all around Australia.
