

Ulmus glabra 'Lutescens'

GOLDEN ELM

A medium-sized deciduous tree which has a vase shape when young, but develops into a tree with a more rounded canopy as it matures. This fast-growing elm is wide spreading, becoming wider than it is tall with age. It has golden foliage and provides good shade for those summer days. Leaves are bright green which may vary in intensity depending on position and exposure to sunlight. In autumn, the foliage puts on a show, turning a brilliant yellow before falling.

Provides good foliage contrast in larger gardens and parks. Adds great colour scheme in autumn and lovely filtered light in summer.

Is tolerant to a wide range of conditions but prefers moist, well drained soils in full sun.
